The Quiraing is a long ridge of vertical cliffs, jagged rock pinnacles and pillars forming a bizarre landscape above scenic Staffin Bay on Skye's Trotternish Peninsula. The formations include a 36m-high stack called the Needle; a hidden high plateau - the Table; and a pyramid-shaped crag - the Prison.

Water tumbles through a mossy chasm under this ancient stone bridge across the River Braan. Built in 1770, it stands in the grounds of the Hermitage, an NTS site, covering a stretch of Perthshire forest, designed as a pleasure ground for the Dukes of Atholl. There are views upstream to the thundering Black Linn Falls, set amid towering Douglas Firs.

This elegant, intriguing house with extensive grounds was Sir Walter Scott's home from 1812 to 1832, where he wrote many of his historical novels such as the Waverley series and Rob Roy. Elaborately decorated in the Scottish Baronial style with romantic turrets and battlements, it contains Scott's library of 9,000 books.

CALTON HILL
EDINBURGH

CALEDONIA

In the 19th century, Edinburgh was envisioned as the 'Athens of the North'. Classical revival buildings on Calton Hill include the National Monument, designed as a replica of the Parthenon in Athens, the City Observatory and the monument to mathematician Dugald Stewart. There are fine views over the city.

NEAR BALLATER
ABERDEENSHIRE

CALEDONIA

Running through snow-clad hills near the village of Ballater, at the eastern edge of the Cairngorms National Park, the Dee is an alluring river. There are many castles sited nearby, the most famous being Balmoral Castle, the summer residence of the Royal Family, giving the area the name Royal Deeside.
